

Lyme carrying ticks are far more common than the authorities will admit, and can literally be found in your own back garden.

Do you know that lyme disease can be carried and passed on to you by your pet dog or cat.

A lyme tick is the size of a poppy seed and can attach itself to your skin for days without you knowing.

The average time it takes to be correctly diagnosed with lyme is 2-3 years. Tragically some people are never correctly diagnosed.

According to the US Lyme Disease Association 37% of the reported cases of lyme are children.

The Lyme spirochete bacteria is hard to detect and hard to kill. Lyme disease is growing at epidemic proportions in most countries.

George W Bush, Neneh Cherry, Richard Gere, Daryl Hall (of Hall & Oates) Ray Mears and more recently Debbie Gibson have all suffered from Lyme disease.

The US CDC (Centre for Disease Control) has recently announced that the incidence of lyme disease in the USA is 10 times higher than previously reported. There are not 30,000 but 300,000 cases per year. The true figure is likely to be higher.

Ticks also attach to birds. Indeed, birds may be a primary means by which the ticks (some infected) are spread from one area to another. Some species of birds also function as a reservoir of infection.

Lyme disease is a world-wide infectious disease and has been discovered on every continent but Antarctica.
